What is it? Competition held by the Gilgandra Historical Society

There were no correct entries in the competition. A draw from a hat resulted in Len McKenzie being awarded the history book prizes. The object was a bone crusher.

Bones were crushed to provide a source of calcium which was then added to animal food, especially for chooks, to help ensure their egg shells were strong. The crushed bone was also powdered and mixed with wax prior to making candles. This resulted in the candle burning more slowly.
